MANIFESTO OF J. S. WOODSWORTH IS WIDELY ATTACKED

Fourteen-Point Economic Program Of Co-Operative Commonwealth Is Presented With Resolution Amid Acid Debate.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—James S. Woodsworth unveiled the 14-point economic program of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation in the house of commons last night for the first time, and ran into immediate fire from the two old political parties. For the first time this session, Liberals and Conservatives presented a united front against a common political foe.

As soon as the slender, bearded leader of Canada's youngest political party had presented his manifesto to the house, John Vallance, a Saskatchewan Liberal, jumped to the attack. He criticized the agricultural features of the program, claiming it meant confiscation of land and charged the C. C. F. with attempting to label "everyone a crook, except themselves."

A few minutes later, John R. MacNichol, a Toronto Conservative, levelled a general attack against the Federation, ending with the charge its policies and objectives were "straight Communism as preached in Russia." It was impossible to stop a revolution at the half-way mark.

RESOLUTION PRESENTED

The C. C. F. leader read his manifesto in support of his motion to supplant the present capitalist system with one "based on the principle of co-operative production and distribution in which the human needs should be the first consideration." He traversed each of the 14 points conceived at the Regina convention last July and based on the general regulation of production and distribution, planned and socialized economy. At the same time he denied the C. C. F. was allied with Communism or that it advocated force in gaining its objectives.

DEBATE FOLLOWS

Debate on the Woodsworth motion will continue Thursday and probably will be extended several days because it marks the first acid test of strength in the house for C. C. F. and its program.

The buttons were off the folds from the first minute of its debate yesterday. Michael Luchkovitch, (U.F.A. Vegetarian), kept the political pot boiling with a counter-attack against the Liberals, claiming they had no policies of their own except the time-worn cry of reduced tariffs. He also denied Communist affiliations of the C.C.F. and, coming from Ukrainian background, promised to desert the party if the land of Russia ever appeared in its midst.

NOT STRICTLY A PARTY

One point emphasized by the C.C.F. leader was that religious and minority rights would be respected. It was strictly a party but a federation of various organizations. They were enumerated and went on to discuss present conditions.

He did not think there was any permanent "comeback" in the present economic system.

"We might have some temporary revival but it will only be temporary in Canada."

B. C. NEEDS T.B. SANITARIUM

VICTORIA, Feb. 6.—Need for a tuberculosis sanitarium on British Columbia's lower mainland is pressing but, as such an institution is to be erected it will have to be with federal assistance. Hon. G. N. Weir, provincial secretary, said yesterday.

"This is one of the matters we took up at the Ottawa conference last month and we are hoping something can be done from that direction," Mr. Weir said.

Ottawa realizes the area is under-hospitalized as far as T.B. is concerned, Mr. Weir added.

Sentence Imposed

COCHRANE, Ont., Feb. 6.—Sam Abraham, 50-year-old Cochrane resident, was convicted yesterday of shooting and wounding Helen Chaudhury, housekeeper, and was sentenced to six years in Kingston penitentiary.

As Partridge Tale Is Told

Alberta's shotgun fanatics can read this and weep. Maybe it's just a case of good birds getting sloppy in the effete east. "This" is an excerpt from the "Eastern Chronicle" of New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, read out at the monthly meeting of the Northern Alberta Game and Fish Protective League by George M. Spargo, secretary, on Monday night.

Members who have hunted and shot at and occasionally bagged one of these rip-roarin' rockets of feathered fends called Hungarian partridge in Alberta stubblefields may not believe the article, but Mr. Spargo can't help what the eastern papers print. Here it is:

"The Hungarian partridge was introduced into Nova Scotia six years ago as a game bird for the amusement of sportsmen.

CHILD SHAMES THIEVES AWAY

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—Three bandits entered the store of John Zochi of Roxbury, took $6 from the cash register, and were preparing to search him for more cash, when his three-year-old daughter, Anna, clad in a nightgown and rubbing her eyes, toddled out to see what the noise was all about.

With sleepy eyes, she looked at the bandits and smiled, and then reached her hand out and placed it in her father's. Apparently ashamed, the bandit leader whispered, "Come on, let's get out of here," and the trio fled.

Slashing Maniac Commits Tragic History Made At Station K.H.J.

First Radio Studio Murder

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—An unscheduled death drama broke into the broadcast of radio station K.H.J. here yesterday.

An unidentified man, running amuck with a jack-knife, stabbed to death Edwin Wolverton, 21, of Grand Junction, Colo., and slayed another man about the head, while a girl secretary, whom he first menaced, fled screaming down the studio corridor and fainted. Four men subdued him.

Wolverton, who died from a stab wound in the head was on vacation from a Colorado radio station.

The second victim was Warren Feldman, 40, a representative of the Dow-Jones news service. His wounds were not serious.

The man came to the studio and went into the office of Grace Kane, a secretary, asking for a job he said was promised him. She told him she knew nothing of it. Suddenly infuriated the man slipped out a jack-knife.

Horried, Miss Kane, screamed.

Then Wolverton walked in. The man whirled and struck him again and again on the head, one stab penetrating the brain. Feldman came in, and the attacker paused in his hacking of Wolverton and slashed Feldman.

When subdued the man was removed to a police station, where he put up another battle. Police were unable to get any explanation from him, his mutterings being incoherent.

A registered mail slip in his clothing bore the name "Clarence Walcott," and the initials "C. L. W." were written inside his handkerchief. The radio station attaches said they had never seen him before.

3 Deaths Caused By Boiling Coffee

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Coffee boiling over a pot on a gas stove caused the deaths of a family of three in Brooklyn. The victims were Louis and Marcelline Termino and their nine-year-old son, Frank. The overflowing coffee extinguished the gas flame. The escaping gas smothered them.

The fully clothed bodies were found crosswise in bed in the Termino flat. Police reported the parents had prepared luncheon and had lain down for a nap while waiting for the boy to return and their coffee to boil.

When Frank entered he apparently decided to rest, too, and did not notice the coffee pot on the stove.

In addition to twenty light cruisers and gunboats now under construction in Spain, others will be ordered chiefly to protect the West Coast from the possibility of invasion.

The Leader Announces The Revolutionary NEW CHEVROLET

Embodying the Greatest Advances in Low Priced Car Design Since the Pioneer Chevrolet Six of 1929

DO YOU remember the pioneer Chevrolet Six of 1929—the car that changed everybody's ideas about smoothness, comfort and performance in the low-price field? Now we urge you to see and drive another revolutionary Chevrolet—the new Chevrolet for 1934! We have given it "Knee-Action" front wheels—so that now you can enjoy a true FLOATING RIDE. We've developed an advanced design of the famous, proved Chevrolet engine—giving more power and greater performance with actually less cost for gasoline and oil. Chevrolet engineers have perfected safer, more positive-acting brakes. They've built a new, stronger YK-frame—lengthening the chassis and redistributing the car's weight so that the sturdy, streamlined Fisher Bodies are larger and roomier than ever. Fisher has designed an improved, built-in system of quiet No-Drift Ventilation. Drive the 1934 Chevrolet just once—compare it—and you'll never be satisfied with any other car in its class. Because only Chevrolet—Canada's outstanding sales leader—backed by the practical design-ideas of 60,000 Canadian motorists—could build one low priced car with all these great advancements.

THE FLOATING RIDE

Because of stiff front springs and rigid front axle, conventional cars bounce when meeting a bump—jarring you. Now the front wheels of the new Chevrolet rise and fall like knees, conforming flexibly to road irregularities while the car and passengers float steadily ahead on "even keel". Other features contributing to THE FLOATING RIDE include . . . Balanced Springing—Double-acting Front Shock Absorbers; Greatly Improved Steering.

MORE POWERFUL ENGINE

New "Blue Flame" cylinder head insures complete combustion of fuel. Thus, horsepower, smoothness and acceleration are increased, while gasoline consumption is actually lower.

NOTHING DOING

"Canada will never sign a top-sided reciprocity treaty with Washington that would open Canadian markets to lower priced farm products," Premier Bennett told the House today.

If the formula of nebulosity is to be supposed to have any relation to things present and tangible, the inference is that the proposed reciprocity flirtation with Washington, which broke out last winter, is all off, leaving our Premier with a not very happy expression.

The outbreak was provoked by an inquiry from the Liberal benches as to how the pour-parlers have been proceeding, whether an arrangement might be expected to result in 10 when. From the tenor of the response, enquiries on that subject are not welcome, which can only mean that the government is not likely to make the early conclusion of a reciprocity treaty likely.

Recently President Roosevelt refused to be "blasted."

A DISCOUNT, "ON PAPER"

If they had the gold, the countries which use the United States $12,000,000,000 in war debts could settle cash. They could pay it now at 40 per cent discount, the United States paying the exchange.

As they do not happen to have the gold with one exception, there will be no rush to cash in at Washington. In point of fact the one exception, which is the United States, is not promptly and in full, France, is the least likely of the debtors to pay anything, even a "token."

So far as the debt question is affected, de-valuing the dollar has been a disaster. It has cost "only" $7,000,000,000 to pay, instead of $12,000, "000,000, and the United States with "only" $7,000,000,000 to collect.

That does not bring a settlement of the debts vis-à-vis them. It was, since the debts were incurred, the gold, and the United States will not accept their bids in payment. As the United States has bid up the price of a dollar, the debtors will have to pay as much as the United States.

As the United States has bid up the price of a dollar, the debtors will have to pay as much as the United States. The more gold is drawn into the United States, the less the debtors governments will be able to lay hands on for payment of their debts.

THE ONE THING NEEDED

The international wheat commission is making a considerable amount of money. The latest proposal is that a campaign be launched to encourage the wider use of wheat, particularly in Oriental countries where rice is now the standard food.

Whatever the prospect of success for a campaign of this kind, it is not the wheat that is being aimed in the right direction. In regard to wheat, as to most other commodities, the immediate need is that that wheat that is not being sold but that is being stored in the silos; which of course can only be brought about by a wider distribution, and a more general distribution, of buying power.

Hundreds of millions of people need wheat to eat, who are eating less than they should because of the lack of money to buy it. They are doing without motor cars, radios, and numeration other desirable things they cannot afford to buy. Advances must be made to create an unfilled world need that would deplete the surpluses if money were put into empty pockets.

As a result of the consumption, of wheat or other commodities, leads straight to the problem of distributing purchasing power.
Every effort that is made to stimulate consumption must bring that problem more instantly to attention and therefore nearer to solution.

If an effort is made to stimulate consumption and broke down, that would centre world attention on buying power as the "key log" in the commercial jam.

"THE PUBLIC BE" — DEFIED

Premier Bennett's idea is that the best way to defend is to defy. And for a government to defy its Government now is the probably right. Having flouted public opinion for three years on end, on every subject from financial racketeering to unemployment and from the restriction of the right of free speech to the right of free speech, his judgment is sound as the usefulness of trying at this late date to either win or lose his policy or to placate popular resentment.

Neither of these things can now be done.
"Defiance" is a national and a national policy have robbed the Canadian people beyond even the ability of Mr. Bennett to defy, explain or excuse. The only way out of this situation of misconceptions is incapable of defence.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COOPER

Great is the power of superstition. Because in the natural course of events the persons who were present at the opening of King Tutankham's tomb are dropping off one by one, the story of the "Curse of Tut" is revived with each death.

A few weeks ago Arthur Weigall, former inspector of antiquities for the Egyptian Government, died. Now Albert M. Sarras, who was present at the opening of the tomb, has died.

Herbert Winlock, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, has made some complaints about the "curse of King Tut." Winlock was present with Weigall and Lythgoe when Howard Carter penetrated the inner chamber of the dead Pharaoh. This is what he says:

"The man who discovered the steps of the tomb is alive. Of the five who attended the opening of the tomb, only one is dead."

Of the twenty-two who were present at the opening of the inner chamber, only six are known to be dead.

Of the ten who examined the mummy, nearly all are known to be dead.

Of the twenty-two who saw the sarcophagus opened, only two are dead.

Each of the five who attended the opening of the tomb is still alive. In more cases, the ache turns into a sharp pain and this pain often shoots through to the back and seems to be located in the right shoulder blade. I feel sure that you have stomach trouble,
I advise that you find out through a first-class examination whether you have stomach trouble
or whether you really have something wrong with your gall bladder.

In giving you this examination the doctor
will use the fluoroscope, which is a special type of x-ray machine. In addition he may use the new test for gall bladder trouble called the Graham dye test. By means of this test a dye is given to the patient, which reaches the gall bladder and through a careful study of the organ while the doctor is looking at it, he is able to learn a great deal about how the gall bladder fills and empties and does its work. I feel sure that you are examining your gall bladder as I just described it, in the long run, really both
the cheapest and the most satisfactory one you could possibly have.

There is no reason to believe that a chronic inflammation of the gall bladder may make any tendency to arthritis, and I therefore strongly urge that, if you have arthritis, you pay particular attention to the state of your gall bladder.

Most patients with "sick" gall bladder
to know if it is a dangerous disease. While this test is not one of the killing diseases, it is one of the diseases that can be cured. It is better off in every way after he has overcome it.
Tomorrow's article: "Treatment of 'Sick'
Gall Bladder."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
QUESTION: From Burger, Me, comes this question: "You plan to publish a book on the subject of the best canned foods for me to use?"

ANSWER: There are any number of wholesome canned foods now on the market. I feel sure that you will find the right one for you.
I will list a few of the most wholesome and appetizing: Asparagus, string
beans, corn, pineapples, olives, tomato juice, carrots and peas. I am sure that you will find there are also many others which you will find
on the market.

QUESTION: Mrs. C. M. Salem, N.J., asks:
"Can you give me a rule for relaxation?"

ANSWER: One of the best rules to follow
in trying to relax is to lie flat on your back
on a bed and to deliberately try to make each part of the body go to sleep. I feel sure that you will find this a most effective way to help you to imagine that all of the body is very heavy. You will be surprised to find that the tension gradually relaxes and you can actually feel those tightened nerves let go.
I would advise you to continue reading the
books on practical psychology as I feel sure that you will be able to get a great deal of good
from them.

to Health," gives you the mechanics of health in plain, simple, and easy to understand language.

As soon as Dufferin had recovered from the shock, he stepped toward the man to detain
him, when, to his added horror, the man disappeared and Dufferin stepped through the
space he had occupied.

Equally next morning failed to clear up the mystery. No one took notice of the garden neighborhood and no recent death had occurred.
Was it only a nightmare, seen while walking
in his sleep?

A few years later Dufferin was Ambassador to France. He was again asked to dine at the Grand Hotel in Paris. Near the close of the festivities he and his aide withdrew
to their quarters. They approached the hotel elevator and waited for the upward car. When Dufferin, who was in the lead, drew himself up sharply.
The face and figure of the elevator attendant
was the face and figure of the man he had seen in his spooky experience in Ireland, years before.

Two other guests stepped into the elevator,
while Dufferin and his aide proceeded to the hotel manager's office to make enquiries about
the man who had been looking at them.

While they sat there a page ran in with the dread news that the elevator had dropped from the fifth story of the hotel and all five guests
and attendant had been killed.

Enquiries made after the tragedy in an endeavor to disclose the identity and previous history of the attendants were fruitless. "The whole thing was a mystery," said the hotel manager.

Next day, the hotel manager told me that he had been told that the man who was seen by Dufferin was a Frenchman who was a member of the French secret service and was known to be a very dangerous man.

Some Symptoms of Gall Bladder Disorder

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

In yesterday's article I told you that wrong habits of living will produce a "sick" gall bladder. One of the wrong habits is eating too much food, or eating too much of the following foods: rich desserts, starches, gravies, jams and candies. The fact that the gall bladder is not working properly is shown by the fact that he eats not wisely but too well. If you will improve your eating habits you will have a good meal of the type of meat best suited to produce gall bladder disorder, if indulged in over period of years.

Another bad habit which Dr. F. McCoy may lead to gall bladder disorder is lack of exercise. Athletes who secure plenty of exercise seldom develop any gall bladder trouble as active exercise seems in some way to help the organ to drain and clear itself of bile.

The symptoms of gall bladder trouble are such that the patient usually believes that something is wrong with his stomach. The stomach symptoms which are often present with "sick" gall bladder are a sense of distress and fullness, which comes on soon after eating, a feeling of heaviness or weight in the stomach, and excessive gas, which may cause belching.

Most patients will say that his stomach just doesn't ever feel right. At times the distress after meals is relieved a little, but it is present more or less all the time. At some period there appears a dragging ache over the gall bladder on the upper part of the right side of the abdomen. The ache is dull and nagging and may be accompanied by a heavy feeling. These spells of aching last for a short time, frequently for only two or three days. In more severe cases the ache turns into a sharp pain and this pain
often shoots through to the back and seems to be located in the right shoulder blade. I feel sure that you have stomach trouble,
I advise that you find out through a first-class
examination whether you have stomach trouble
or whether you really have something
wrong with your gall bladder.

In giving you this examination the doctor
will use the fluoroscope, which is a special type
of x-ray machine. In addition he may use the
new test for gall bladder trouble called the Graham dye test. By means of this test a dye
is given to the patient, which reaches the gall bladder and through a careful study of the organ while the doctor is looking at it, he is able
to learn a great deal about how the gall bladder
fills and empties and does its work. I feel sure that you are examining your gall bladder as I
just described it, in the long run, really both
the cheapest and the most satisfactory one you
could possibly have.

inflammation of the gall bladder may make
any tendency to arthritis, and I therefore
pay particular attention to the state of your
gall bladder.

Most patients with "sick" gall bladder
to know if it is a dangerous disease. While this test is not one of the killing diseases, it is one of the diseases that can be cured. It is better off in every way after he has overcome it.

QUESTION: From Burger, Me, comes this
question: "You plan to publish a book on the subject of the best canned foods for me to use?"

ANSWER: There are any number of wholesome canned foods now on the market. I feel sure that you will find the right one for you.
I will list a few of the most wholesome and
appetizing: Asparagus, string
beans, corn, pineapples, olives, tomato juice,
carrots and peas. I am sure that you will find
there are also many others which you will find
on the market.

QUESTION: Mrs. C. M. Salem, N.J., asks:
"Can you give me a rule for relaxation?"

ANSWER: One of the best rules to follow
in trying to relax is to lie flat on your back
on a bed and to deliberately try to make each part of the body go to sleep. I feel sure that you will find this a most effective way to help you to imagine that all of the body is very heavy. You will be surprised to find that
the tension gradually relaxes and you can
actually feel those tightened nerves let go.
I would advise you to continue reading the
books on practical psychology as I feel sure
that you will be able to get a great deal of good
from them.

As soon as Dufferin had recovered from the
shock, he stepped toward the man to detain
him, when, to his added horror, the man disappeared and Dufferin stepped through the
space he had occupied.

Equally next morning failed to clear up the mystery. No one took notice of the garden neighborhood and no recent death had occurred.
Was it only a nightmare, seen while walking
in his sleep?

A few years later Dufferin was Ambassador
to France. He was again asked to dine at
the Grand Hotel in Paris. Near the close of the festivities he and his aide withdrew
to their quarters. They approached the hotel elevator
and waited for the upward car. When Dufferin,
who was in the lead, drew himself up sharply.
The face and figure of the elevator attendant
was the face and figure of the man he had seen
in his spooky experience in Ireland, years before.

Two other guests stepped into the elevator,
while Dufferin and his aide proceeded to the
hotel manager's office to make enquiries about
the man who had been looking at them.

While they sat there a page ran in with the
dread news that the elevator had dropped from
the fifth story of the hotel and all five guests
and attendant had been killed.

Enquiries made after the tragedy in an endeavor to disclose the identity and previous history of the attendants were fruitless. "The whole thing was a mystery," said the hotel manager.

Next day, the hotel manager told me that
he had been told that the man who was seen
by Dufferin was a Frenchman who was a member of the French secret service and was

Gold May Have Been Demonetized

By R. T. KELLOT, K.C.

The effect in the United States of raising the price of gold and lowering the gold content in the dollar may have had the actual result of divorcing gold from money in the United States and throwing gold back into the condition of being dealt with as a commodity and not as money.

This has a strange sound at first; but study and analysis make it seem entirely practicable and very probable.

Silver became demonetized—that is divorced from money and thrown into the market as a commodity—by the action of the market value of silver became so low, and demand so weak and restricted, that no one wanted to pay money for it.

The Government has raised the price of gold so high; and placed such restrictions on holding it and trading in it that no one has any reason to pay money for gold at the Government price. To this extent gold is no longer part of the national monetary system.

Once the public accept the present paper dollar of the United States as having such a value that there is no desire to trade for gold at the Government price, we have arrived at a financial position which could not have been foreseen a few days ago.

The inflation has been confined to the Government fixed price of gold; and the paper dollar has retained its one hundred cents purchasing power. This is precisely the opposite of what was generally expected; but yesterday, after it was known with certainty that the gold content of the dollar would be reduced to sixty cents at present Government price, the New York Stock Exchange had a four mill share day on a substantial rise in share values and the bond market was firm and active.

Under these conditions it is reasonably certain that the available currency and credit supply in the United States at any time, (say at the peak in 1929), will have to be multiplied by at least fifty to get a true estimate of the currency and credit which will now be available for carrying on business of every kind in the United States.

No one can place a limit on the restoration of values and of earning power which will take place. There are no experiences to be by and there is no formula to start from. We have an experience convinced that a dollar based on government credit is more desirable from a business standpoint than gold at present price and restricted power of use.

From a mercantile standpoint money is worth what it will buy, and when the ordinary dollar of commerce can buy in current market rates, there seems no way to put any brake that will hold the volume of the money supply much more than to an enormous increase in volume of available currency and credit backed by full public confidence.

This is why a few weeks may demonstrate a new commercial condition, completely divorced from all the old limitations and restrictions based on the fear of inflation. It is a metallic base. The movement will gather speed from day to day and no one can foresee the limits of its limit.

LEAD POISON CHARGED TO PACKET CEREAL

Slab of Metal in Box Made Family All Sick

YORKTON, Sask., Feb. 6.—Three members of a Yorkton household have been taken to hospital after eating cereal from a packet.

The mother, Mrs. J. W. Marshall, commercial traveller, told how her wife, child, and the maid had narrowly escaped serious illness or perhaps death.

Mrs. Marshall recently purchased a package of a cooked cereal, Marshall said. Monday last she prepared and served some of it.

In doing this she noticed it contained lead and some of the lead was found in the box.

She threw away the cereal and found a small piece of lead in the pot in which the cereal was cooked.

One day Mrs. Marshall's child, who had been eating the cereal, was sick and she was told to stop eating it.

Mrs. Marshall became sick that night. She awoke during the night to hear her son crying for help.

She called the doctor and he came to see her. He found that she was sick and he told her to stop eating the cereal.

The Prairie provinces in 1931 had the most deaths from lead poisoning of any of the rest of Canada.

It was found that the lead was in the cereal and that the lead was in the box.

Grilling Fails to Connect Them With Bremer Kidnap Case

ST. PAUL, Feb. 6.—Eleven men arrested at Owatonna, Minn., last night as suspects in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, were subjected to questioning by the attorney general of Minnesota.

The questioning was conducted by Chief of Police Thomas Dahill after a lengthy grilling.

Five of the band, seized with $40,000 cash and an automatic pistol in their possession at an Owatonna apartment house, were brought here by St. Paul police.

The other six were taken to Owatonna last night. Chief Dahill said, and would be questioned about the recent series of bank robberies and liquor law violations.

The five men, arrested at the 5334th street of 5312 gallons of denatured alcohol from the Bremer kidnaping case.

Suspicion was aroused by the coming and going of the men at the apartment house where they had been since January.

Authorities said, Bremer was followed by the five men and the Bremer family was followed by the five men.

Decentralizing Its Power Asserts Visiting Noble

GOVERNMENT IS FAST BEING STABILIZED

Duke Mario Colonna is Here to Give Series of Lectures

A duke of the old Italy Roman Empire who is as modern as today's paper—who can talk of "de-lunking politics" and "going into a huddle" but whose features and bearing show that he is every inch an aristocrat in the best sense of the word—Duke Mario Colonna, who will also lecture on the various aspects of modern Italy. The duke could talk on some interesting aspects of the modern Italy, too, if he wanted, for his ancestry was "Warrior—King—maker" in the tumultuous times which followed the fall of the first Roman Empire and carved a famous name for himself. He is now a member of the Italian parliament, and he speaks with authority on the subject of Italian history.

NOT PROPAGANDIST
Duke Colonna denies that he is any sort of an official propagandist, and indeed he spoke with refreshing candor of just what Fascism is trying to accomplish in Italy, with its objective of a corporate state, in which the government shall hold the balance between labor and capital, and see that a fair chance is given to all. "The state aims to be a common center between the various classes," Duke Colonna pointed out. "We will see that capitalism is fair, and we will see that the worker gets a chance to earn a fair living without being oppressed."

"There is no dictatorship in Italy today. We are trying to decentralize power as far as possible. In the first five years of the war, when Mussolini led his black-shirted legions to Rome, it was necessary to centralize power to correct the abuses and restore order."

"Now that these things have been achieved, we are decentralizing power, and are thus stabilizing it."

BALBO AND DUCE FRIENDS
The duke seemed at a momentary article which recently appeared in an American weekly which alleged that he was a friend of Benito Mussolini, and that he had been an Italian air commander from Italy to the Chicago fair.

"Balbo has always worked loyally with Mussolini," the duke explained. "He did invaluable work in reorganizing the Italian air force. The air force, army and navy are now all centralized under a ministry of national defense, and Balbo has been given the job of governing of Libya, our most important colony, and in which there is a great field for Balbo's talents."

"The duke said the professional politicians in Italy, and in other countries, were the chief opponents of the new Fascist state, hence all the attacks on it by way of propaganda."

"The old school of politicians tried to find a remedy in word—endless words—for a situation. We acted. They didn't like that. We re-organized politics," laughed the duke.

HITLER AN IMITATOR
Mention of Hitler brought another laugh from the duke. "We can laugh at those who try to imitate our methods in a blundering way," said Duke Colonna. "When Hitler first came to power, we had strong hopes of a better era in Germany, but I doubt how it things are going so good. He has abolished the trade union and gives all power to the employers—under himself, of course—and that is a good deal different to what we are doing."

"The workers constitute the greater part of any country's population," the duke explained. "To have a prosperous and contented people, it is more necessary to preserve their interests than those of any action. When you have the employers in a position where they can work their men without hindrance, then inevitably you get dissatisfaction and revolt."

A DELICATE SUBJECT
Asked about Italy's stand with regard to efforts of Germany to take over Austria, the Duke said that this was rather a delicate subject at present. However, Italy believed that Austria should be left free and independent. If the Austrians are forcibly taken into Germany, it will lead to endless trouble and friction, both within Germany and outside of it.

The Duke said that it looked to him as though if Germany's efforts are a success, then Hitler will take the credit, but if they are a failure and Austria withstands German pressure, then Hitler will be able to say that the trouble was caused by Nazis working on their own.

ADMIRES ROOSEVELT
Duke Colonna expressed a high admiration for President Roosevelt. "He is aiming at exactly the same objectives as we are," the duke pointed out. "Actually, he is far more of a dictator than I am. But the job he has is no big—there are so many things to clean up—that he has delegated a good deal of his power to his subordinates."

Italy, too, was at a managed currency, by which money values shall approximate the living costs. One must strike a happy medium, he asserted.

"If you deflate too much, you hurt the dealer; if you inflate too much, you hurt the creditor. Italy's

61 Reunions In Eight Years Ends Male's Patience

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Sixty-one times since they were married in 1923 Patrick Linton left his wife Mary. That was an average of almost once a month. But each time she permitted him to come back and allowed herself to be reconciled with him. So Patrick filed in superior court a suit for divorce from his wife. The bill charged cruelty.

Disappointment, Honesty's Price

CARLISLE, Pa., Feb. 6.—Sergeant John A. Beyer and Sergeant Clarence Barnhart, both members of the medical field service school band, are disappointed men. They killed a four-point buck when it ran across the road in front of their automobile, went for a gun, warden, leaving the deer alone the roadside. When they returned the animal was missing.

It took for the state to hold the balance and so far to all sections. We want neither the slavery of a bureaucratic socialism, nor unrestrained capitalism—the theory of let everyone do as he pleases and the devil take the hindmost. "I think," concluded Duke Colonna with a warm smile, "that more and more people are beginning to see the necessity for such a system."

Woman Survives Bullet In Brain
UTICA, N.Y., Feb. 6.—Miss Anna Mullen, twenty-eight, who was shot through the brain here recently when Paul Ganin mistook her car for his and thought she was stealing, it is continuing to improve after doctors thought she would die. ## ICE NEEDLES PIERCE FLESH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 6.—That feeling of piercing needles when fingers ache in a cold snap is no imagination. The needles are real, microscopically small spears of ice which shoot through flesh and blood. They were described to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Paul A. Young of Montana State College. Although he has not applied his microscope to real fingers, he has watched the process in emulsions of petroleum which resemble human protoplasm. He said:

"When fingers become too cold, needles of ice form in the flesh and puncture many of the cells and nerves."

Students Abandon Coonskin Coats

AMES, Ia., Feb. 6.—"Joe College" is gradually abandoning the mode of going bare-headed in flashy suits and coonskin coats at Iowa State College. A questionnaire of Ames merchants revealed this trend. Forty per cent of the fraternity men at the college now wear hats to class and 70 per cent don hats for dates, the figures showed.

Merchants are selling nearly three times as many conservative type suits this year as last, and the "college" fur coat sales are lessening, they reported. By acclamation, Dr. Couillard, F. Lemski and Dr. John Yakimichuk being declared elected. Elections take place on Monday next.

Seattle Blanks Eskimos 1-0 in Fast Northwestern Hockey League Tilt

SEASIDE PLAY OPENS WEDNESDAY

A lot of familiar figures in town for the annual bonspiel... And a lot of familiar ones missing... Year after year there are certain skids who bring thrills to the city for the big event and it just wouldn't be right if they were not on hand... This winter there are a number of strong-looking youngsters in from outside points, as the results of Monday indicate, and there will be some of these right up there when the final accounting takes place... Joe Heartwell, of Rostown, Sask., always a popular visitor here, and Gierlich, of Westlak, another regular competitor at the bonspiel, went through to the "first round" of the Grand Challenge yesterday, with Robinson, of Jasper, still in the major event, although he had not reached that bracket by daylight.

All in all, the start Monday indicates very definitely that this year's bonspiel is to rank with the best ever held here and that's saying plenty.

The big boss of the Eskimo hockey club, Duke Katz, opened last week that Seattle Seahawks would be just about the strongest team in the Northwestern League right now... And last night he was sorrowfully discovered that he had not been wrong when the Hawks took a 1-0 verdict from his Eks... It might have been worse, too, if Earl Robertson had not had such a brilliant night in the Eskimo goal for Robbie was enjoying one of his most spectacular evenings... Stan Mohr was not used by the Eskimos last night and may see action during the remaining games... He has no worries on this score, however, as he is signed to a season's contract with the do-re-mi regardless of whether he plays or counts... Which is all that counts in any pro sport...

Earl March, of the Toronto Stars, retired in his day and night... Eddie Shore was not playing in the Ace Bailey benefit game in Toronto... Storey that Art Ross will not let Shore play because of his own personal feud with Conny Smyth... Last season, when he was in the line, Ross was so far wrong in that as he has proved on many other points in his career... The same writer also takes time to rap Westerners for taking Shore to part in the affair.
